Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 18 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Another day of showers and sunny spells, possible thunder.

Today:
A familiar mixture of sunny spells and scattered showers, these developing quickly through the morning, some possibly heavy and thundery, with a risk of hail. Similar conditions to recently, but breezy, especially along southern coasts. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Tonight:
After a brief dry spell heading into the evening, a group of organised showers sweeps eastwards across the region overnight. These largely clear by morning. Blustery along southern coasts. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Wednesday:
Through the morning, showers develop quickly across the region, less frequent than recently, but still possibly heavy. Driest across Cornwall. Turning dry throughout later, but rain approaches westernmost areas overnight. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Persistent rain on Thursday arriving from the west, with strong winds and coastal gales. Staying wet on Friday, winds remaining strong. Further scattered showers and sunny spells on Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.